This incredible item surfaced in the South, and after This incredible item surfaced in the South, and after passing through several hands was offered to me at the famed Maryland Arms Collectors (Baltimore) Show a few months ago. A 4½ diameter Revolutionary War cannon ball fitted with a domed coin silver cap. This cap is entirely hand engraved in a variety of scripts and lettering styles, and reads "This cannon ball was dug up on the Battle Field of Brandywine on the hill occupied by the Americans, and is supposed to have been fired by the Hessian forces under General Knyphausen. Presented to HON JOHN SHERMAN of Ohio in token of appreciation of his eloquent speech at the Grand Mass Meeting of his eloquent speech at the Grand Mass Meeting held on the Battle Field September 11 1860 in furtherance of the election of LINCOLN & HAMLIN. Thomas Webster Jr, Franklin Taylor, U H Painter -Committee" younger brother of William Sherman, John Sherman, younger brother of william recumseh Sherman, was a powerful force for decades in Washington. He served in the House of Representatives from 1855-1861, then in the Senate from 1861-77 and 1881-97. From 1877-81 he was Secretary of the Treasury under Rutherford B. Hayes, His name is still recalled today in the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The battle at Brandywine, Sept 11 1777, was a significant part of Washington's campaign in eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey. Washington was forced to retreat, with significant losses on both sides, but he decisively defeated the British three months later at Princeton. Princeton.

Item in generally excellent condition - a few scattered small dings in the silver cap.

I never realized that photographer Mathew Brady had actually published an advertising print based on his early work. Excessively rare large folio print dated 1849. "President Taylor and His Cabinet - Published by M B Brady, Daguerrian Artist - From his celebrated Daguerreotypes taken at Washington April 1849. The original portraits are for exhibition with many others at Brady's National Gallery No 205 Broadway, New York". Plate size 16 X 24 on mount 21 X 28. Near mint, small insignificant flaws at extreme edges/corners. Drawn on stone by Davignon & Hoffman, printed by Nagel and Weingartner NY. Another example is in the collection of Matthew Isenburg, who told me he paid $2,200 for it almost 30 years ago.

Superb sixth plate daguerreotype of a prosperous heavyset middle aged black lady. Wearing a dark dress of plain unpatterned fabric with black lace cuffs and a white lace collar. Gold tinted earrings and brooch at throat. Slightest bit of tarnish upper right background, excellent.

Unique 16" fireman's trumpet in a striking style usually referred to as nailsea glass. Elongated loops of blue and red (dark pink) in a white background. Applied cranberry red rim around bottom edge of bell. Probably Pittsburgh or Ohio, late 19th century. All glass fire trumpets are very rare. Most of the examples seen are either copper wheel cut or overlay glass, typically red cut to clear. I have never heard of another example in nailsea glass. Essentially perfectone tiny shallow flake at tip of mouthpiece. 6,000. Gorgeous large poster 38 X 73 by Strobridge, 1897. Two girls on beach with Sterling Bicycle, bathers wading in background, lighthouse in distance. Excellent, on linen.

Man at right has red tinted shirt, and carries a wooden yoke across his shoulders. Two large metal buckets hang from the yoke. A large box heaped with gravel or ore is on ground between the two men. The earliest piece of 'Americana' I have had. A massive silver bar from the time of the early 16th century conquest of Mexico and the Aztecs by Hernando Cortez. This is from one of the most historic shipwrecks ever salvaged - the so-called 'Tumbaga' wreck, sunk off Grand Bahama Island around 1530 (thought by some to be the 1528 wreck of the Concepcion). Cortez conquered Montezuma's capital in 1521, and for the next 15 years ships were sent home laden with the looted riches of Mexico.

The 'Tumbaga' bars are a mixture of silver and copper cast into irregular bars for shipping during copper cast into irregular bars for shipping during the earliest years of Spanish conquest. The bar offered here is HUGE - weighing over 25 pounds and measuring 14½ X 4½ X 1½. The bars were marked with the Kings's tax stamp, a silver fineness in ley (parts per 2400), and sometimes a serial number and/or the initials of the assayer. The offered bar has Bernardino Vasquez), a serial number rlxxx, and a fineness of 1550 ley (about 65% silver). Flawless undamaged condition.

After surviving intact for 450 years, it's actually amazing that this bar made it through the 'gold rush' of the Carter era. At the peak of the silver market around 1979-80, this bar would have assayed (melted) for about $10,000. Accompanied by photocopied info on shipwrecks, the tumbaga bars and the treasure of the conquistadors.

Use it for a doorstop - just don't kick it with your bare feet !!! 4,750.
